The news of the affair caused intense indignation in Fanwood, and efforts were made to capture the scoundrels.

Shelly's alleged companions were William Adams and George Shay, both unmarried. All three are worthless characters, who have not been known to do any work for a long time.

Shelly is married and is forty-five rears old, but his wife has had to work hard to support him for some years. He claims all the part he took in the dastardly outrage was to rob the victim.

He was taken before Justice Charles K. Moore, of Fanwood, who committee im in default of $1,000 ball. Adams and hay have fied, but warrants are out or their arrest, and the police expect to apture them in a day or so.

loan issued by the Government was a success mainly through the efforts of the New York banks.

The week opened with a fair degree of activity at the Stock Exchange and with the buillish feeling in the ascendant. The fact that the earnings of the St. Paul road for the fourth week of May a showed a decrease of only $106,995 led to a general improvement in the stocks of Western roads.

The bears attempted to check the rising tendency by making a vigorous raid on Sugar on the strength of the news from Washington about the investigation into the relations of certain Senators towards the Sigar Trust, but the movement mer with little success.

Sugar ran off from 104 5-8 to 102 1-4, but the remainder of the list, after a momentary halt, soon started on the up tack again.

The acriy sellers of Sugar were forced to cover up and the stock rose from 102 1-2 to 104 1-8. that the lie was passed by Hayes to the man from Denver, Col. Chinn heard it.

"Kill the rat, Tom," the Kentuckian shouted, drawing a murderous .4-callbre weapon from his pocket and passing it to Mulqueen over the bar. The latter grabbed for the firearm, and drew back to let it go, but a dozen arms soon entwined the form of the Denverite, and the gun was wrested from his grasp. Half a dozen men took hold of Hayes and dragged him out of the saloon, while a number of Chinn's friends forced the man from Harrodsburg into a corner, where he was held pinioned till Hayes was gotten out of the way. Hayes's wrath knew no bounds, and while being dragged out of the place he yowed that he would even matters with Chinn.

Friends tried to caim the maddened man. He got away from them, however, and holted off for a weapon of some sort with which to kill Chinn. He soon returned with a dirk as long as his arm. Col. Chinn was still standing at the har, surrounded by a crowd of his friends. Hayes made straight at him, but was intercepted when within five feet of the Kentuckian. Chinn saw the glistening knife Hayes had drawn from the folds of his coat, and immediately went for his lone r maning weapon, a long, narrow knife from a pocket which had been specially prepared for it in the making of his dreas shirt, back of the colar. Both men were being firmly held. They struggled fiercely to free themselves, but the combined strength of their captors was too much for them.

This May Ald Jacobi in Proving an Althi.

The solving of the mystery surround ng the death of Minnie Weldt seems to depend upon connecting Ernest Paul Jacobi with the crime.

The evidence thus far obtained does not appear to be very strong against him. Jacobi is thirty-five years of age, German and has been eleven years in this country. He lives with his wife this country. He lives with his wife at 537 East Eighty-third street, and at times has been a waiter.

On the morning of the day Minnie Weldt was found strangled in bed, Jacobi got a drink on credit at Groda's saloon in East Eighty-fifth street. He said he was going to Staten Island to get work, and returned in the afternoon with plenty of money. He then shaved off his mustache and made three conflicting explanations for causing this change in his appearance.

The police have no proof that Jacobi even knew Minnie Weldt.

His suddenly coming into possession even knew Minnie Weldt.

His susdenly coming into possession of money may be explained by Gretchen Husch's story. She says he called on the mirrian of the murder, and while she was out for beer stole $20 from her trunk. According to Gretchen, Jacobi visited her about the time that Mrs. Boes, who lives in rooms objects the Weidt apartments at 221 East Sixty-first street, says the unknown man called in the murdered girl. Jacobi denies any acquaintance with Minnie Section of the Weidt.

At midnight all were more or less drunk. Simon was then in an ugly humor, and was fingering the blade of an open jackkinfe. Some one in the party tried to take the knife away by force, and in the fight which followed Simon was budty beaten about the face. He clung to his knife and used it on Miller and his wife, stabbing the former three times and the latter twice in the right arm. He then fled and was captured by Policeman John Ward, of the West Forty-seventh street station.
